"Proof of Hardship"

Emergency Rent Assistance FAQs

How long does it take to verify eligibility for emergency rent assistance/first month's rent assistance?

- Typically, it takes one week from the initial request of assistance so that our administrators can review the submitted paperwork and make a decision on eligibility. Once we verify eligibility, it takes 7-10 business days for the property manager/landlord to receive the pledged assistance from our office.
- Please turn in all required documents within 48 hours. Requesting emergency rent assistance/first month's rent assistance is on a first come, first serve basis.
- To help expedite the process, please let your property manager/landlord know that Bellevue LifeSpring will be contacting them. Some properties need permission to release your information to an organization.

I cannot email documents to Bellevue LifeSpring. Is there another way to submit paperwork?

You can send a clear photo (image of whole document) via text to (425) 410-6289.

I cannot obtain an employer letter, or any other Proof of Hardship listed on the flyer. Can I use something else for Proof of Hardship?

Yes, some items under "Proof of Income" qualify as alternative "Proof of Hardship" documents. Many government benefits qualify. Here are a few examples:

- Annual sales report (only applies to business owners)
- Doctor's note (for guardians who are immunocompromised)
- Disaster Cash Assistance Program
- Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF)

You may always ask our Human Services Administrative team via email help@bellevuelifespring.org if a document outside of this list is eligible.

What if I do not have a lease or lease contract?

You will need to contact your property manager/landlord and request a written agreement that lists:

- Name of landlord and tenants
- Duration of lease
- Monthly rent amount
- Address of residence

What if I do not have a birth certificate for my child(ren)?

You may submit medical documents, school enrollment forms or benefit letters from DSHS with list of dependents showing guardianship of children.
